Harding Worked From Log Cabin To White House

Warren Gamaliel Harding, 28th president of the United States, furnishes American history with still another example of a country boy who worked his way unaided from a log cabin birthplace to the highest office in the land.

Born of poor parents, Harding made his own way through school and college, fought an uphill battle to become a successful newspaper publisher, gained leadership in Ohio state politics, became a United States senator and finally was elected chief executive of the nation.

Harding was born in a two-room log cabin on his grandfather's farm near Blooming Grove, Morrow county, O., Nov. 2, 1865.

His father, George Tyron Harding, was a country physician whose income from his restricted practice was so small that he was forced to work in the fields to support his family.

His mother, Phoebe Elizabeth Dickerson Harding, now dead, was a home-loving woman of deep religious convictions. She was of the Adair family.

Both parents came of a long line of American born ancestors, all hardy pioneers. The elder Harding was of Scotch descent while his wife came of Dutch ancestry.

Eldest of Eight

Harding was the eldest of eight children. When he was 3 the family moved to Caledonia, O., a neighboring village.

As a boy Harding began to show traces of the qualities that later characterized him. He learned to read at 4. He was expert at memorizing long prose and poetic passages. He loved to speak and recite on every possible occasion.

But the boy Harding was far from being of the usual genius type. From childhood he was obliged to work with his hands on the farm.

His studies at the village school frequently were interrupted by long periods of absence during which he helped in clearing land, planting and harvesting.

He grew into a boy of powerful physique and became naturally a leader among his schoolmates. He revealed an outdoor sports.

These Harding's boyhood passed. At 14 he was more than six feet tall—a lanky, ungainly youth.

At this age he entered Ohio Central College at Iberia, O. This was little more than an academy. It has since passed out of existence.

Harding had no funds to pay for his education. But he made his way by working during vacations and in spare hours.

He drove teams, worked on a rail-way right of way, cleared land, split rails and—most important—traveled about the country as a peddler.

When the White House was being painted in 1921 Harding took a brush from the hands of one of the painters and demonstrated his skill.

Starts Newspaper Work

It was at college that Harding got his first newspaper experience in editing a college paper. He also worked in the village printshop.

Harding finished his college course in 1882 when he was 17. In 1883 his family moved to Marion, O., and Harding went, too.

At Marion Harding followed three lines of activity—he taught a country school, read law and played a horn in the town band.

But Harding's heart was in newspaper work. In the course of his first year at Marion he acquired the Marion Daily Star.

These half dozen stories of how Harding came into possession of the paper, but this one has been told by Harding himself.

The Star, a second-rate paper, was about to be sold at sheriff's sale. Harding's father secured control of the paper by settling its debts.

No cash was passed. The debts were settled by trading real estate. Anyway, Harding found himself editor and proprietor of a real daily newspaper.

But not for long. A judgment was entered in court against some of the property Harding's father had traded for the paper and Warren lost control.

Fired As Reporter

Discouraged he went to work at $7 a week as a reporter on the Marion Mirror Democratic paper.

The Blaine-Cleveland presidential campaign was at its height. Harding was an ardent supporter of Blaine, the Republican candidate. One day he wore a Blaine hat to work. His Democratic boss dismissed him.

Harding sold insurance and went on playing in the band until Cleveland was elected. On election night Harding and Jack Warwick, now paragrapher on a Toledo newspaper, decided to buy the Star back again.

Harding had $100. Warwick borrowed $100. They bought the Star. Then began a hard struggle. Often Harding had to ask advertisers to pay in advance to meet the demands of creditors. He used to swing between Marion from store to store, soliciting advertisements and calling "local items."

But the fight won. Today the Star is a gold mine. It has the biggest circulation of any paper in a town of 30,000 in the middle west. It has wide influence.

crushed, unemployment was growing, international relations were hopelessly involved.

At the close of Harding's first year, the administration pointed to these accomplishments:

Technical state of war with Germany and Austria was brought to an end.

Immigration, which had added to the unemployment burden, was restricted by congressional enactment.

A budget system was established and a survey undertaken for reorganization of governmental departments with view to saving expense.

The Veterans' Bureau was established, bringing under one head the scattered activities connected with the welfare of former service men.

The stand of the United States government on mandates conferred by the Versailles treaty was clarified.

A federal highway act appropriating $75,000,000 for federal co-operation with states in building better roads.

Readings of $86,000,000 was effected in the naval appropriation bill and $15,000,000 in army expenditures.

A commission was created for handling the refunding of allied debts to the United States.

Packers' bill was passed for regulation of traffic in livestock, eggs and dairy products, while another bill was passed prohibiting grain adulteration.

Arms Parley

But President Harding's one great outstanding achievement in his first year was the calling of the world disarmament conference at Washington in November, 1921.

This conference, moved the threat of war in the Far East and definitely did away with the Anglo-Japanese treaty, by some regarded as a menace to the United States.

The conference drafted treaties providing for co-operation between the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan in maintaining peace in the Far East. (Four-Power Pacific Treaty)

Recognition of the open door in China by all nations interested in the Far East.

Retention by the United States of cable and radio rights on Yap, a Pacific island important as a communication center.

Harding was a man of more than usual height—he was well over six feet tall. His head was large, set in a square jaw, and his eyes were light blue, his face non-like. His frame was sinewy.

Friends called him "his own great-est taskmaster." He worked hard and long throughout his life. At the White House he started the day at 8 a. m. and rarely finished work before midnight.

Golfing His Sport

His favorite sports were fishing and golfing—chiefly the latter. As president he was known as the best-dressed man in Washington.

Harding, from boyhood to presidency, was famed as a conciliator and great ability in drawing together rival factions. He tried to emulate McKinley in this respect.

His three great heroes were Alexander Hamilton, Abraham Lincoln and Napoleon. He devoured every book he could find about Napoleon and in Europe visited all the places connected with Napoleon's life.

From his mother he inherited a deep religious nature. He was a trustee of the Trinity Baptist Church at Marion.

He was called the greatest hand-shaker who ever tenanted the White House. Almost any visitor in Washington could get to shake the president's hand, despite the huge volume of work under which the executive labored.

Mrs. Harding was a quiet woman who took little interest in Washington social life. Her influence was a giant factor in bringing her husband to success.

"To be successful a man must be well-fed and well-grounded," she used to say and she devoted her life to making Harding both of these.

Of Harding an editor whom he employed to operate the Marion Star, said:

"W. G. is the squarest, fairest man in the world. And he's a crack-jack reporter."

Character Sketch

Of the President

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Massive in frame and feature, a figure to attract a second look in any crowd, that was Warren G. Harding, the man.

Although slightly less than six feet in height, he carried his 210 pounds without any hint of obesity and his unusually broad and high forehead and heavy, square jaw rounded out an impression of force and distinction.

Contrasting sharply with his all-most silver grey hair were markedly thick black eyebrows which almost masked a pair of calm, grey eyes. In repose his face took on the aspect of severity so often seen in his photographs, but when he talked or listened the lines were broken by a smile that radiated cordiality.

Mr. Harding was both a good conversationalist and a good listener and he loved to rub elbows with his fellow men. His first official order was that the gates to the White House grounds be thrown open and at the start he received visitors at almost any hour of the day. This took up so much of his time, however, that the establishment of a fixed hour for this purpose was decided upon.

Each day after he had cleared his desk and was ready for lunch period he met groups of visitors in the executive office, shaking hands and exchanging a smile and a word with each individual.

White House officers estimated that an average of 1,000 persons called upon him daily. He reviewed also the more formal functions, such as the New York receptions and the state and diplomatic dinners.

Mr. Harding was very fond of children, though he had none of his own. And Easter egg rolling on the White House lawn was made an annual event. He and Mrs. Harding mingled freely with the little tots and appeared to find much enjoyment in watching them at play.

In his rest hours Mr. Harding liked to have around his personal friends and intimates in whose company he could put aside the dignity and state of office and with whom he could swap stories and reminiscences.

It was not surprising then that, like Cleveland before him, he frequently slipped away from the White House in the evening to pay informal calls upon former associates in the Senate and other close friends.

Golf was Mr. Harding's favorite recreation and whenever public affairs permitted he sought the links of a Washington country club. His friends in the Senate were frequently his opponents and in such matches there always developed a keen though friendly rivalry. By virtue of his position as editor and publisher, Mr. Harding offered also in the annual golf tournament of the Washington correspondents.

Mr. Harding always was a progressive and story his friends loved to relate was how he broke with his partner during the early days of the ownership of the Star over the question of installing a telephone, which then was just coming into use.

The future president was insistent on his point, arguing that it would facilitate the transaction of business and lend prestige to the company, but the partner regarded the proposal as revolutionary and altogether too expensive. Mr. Harding had his way by buying the partner out.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS SENT FLOWERS BEFORE DEATH

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 2.—Several minutes of the president's last quarter hour alive were devoted, as had been much of his life, to childhood and his interests.

Two little girls came to the presidential suite just before 7 o'clock with flowers, seeking to present them to the president.

Mrs. Harding, who shares the president's life long love of children, graciously came from the sick room to speak a word to the two and accepted the gift. Returning to the president she took with her a few of the blossoms and these were in the room a few minutes later when he died.

News Spread With Almost Electrical Suddenness In U.S.

Much Confusion Existed in Hotel Before Death Was Announced Although It Was Evident Something Was Amiss in Sick Chamber.

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The news of President Harding's death swept through his hotel and out of San Francisco with almost electrical suddenness. Hotel officials among the first to whom word of the tragic event was given, immediately had the great blue presidential flag with its gold seal of the United States hauled down and then raised again to half staff.

A minute or two later an assistant manager rushed into the rose bowl room, where a dinner dance was in progress, raised a hand and stopped the orchestra's playing. Announcements of the death of the executive followed and the dancers, their gay dress a sad contrast to their expressions of gravity, gathered into little groups, obtained their wraps and departed.

The news passed from lip to lip. Some guests, more curious than their fellows, gathered in groups at the ends of corridors leading to the presidential rooms and stared downward the hallways at the screens which shut off view of the suite where the twenty-ninth President of the United States lay silent in death.

Cabinet officers, headed by Secretary Hoover, of the Commerce department, hastened up and down the hall, hastening to express their condolence to Mrs. Harding and hurrying back for hasty conferences among themselves or with other government officials.

Lieut. Commander Joel T. Boone, assistant physician to the President, hurried up from downstairs, where a newspaper man had found him in response to Mrs. Harding's frantic appeals.

Rumors began to fly about, each wilder than its predecessor, and all denied soon after by official bulletins which were issued as a dozen words telling the news, or which had been rushed from the press too fast for more than a picture and the phrase, "Harding dead," circulated like wildfire through the downtown districts and even far out on the residential streets within a few minutes after the official bulletin announcing the death had been issued.

They brought a shock to crowds which, a few minutes before were sure that the city's distinguished guest was well on the way to recovery, had started out to spend the evening at theatres, dances or other amusements.

Even before that reports of death had spread far and the telephone switchboard at the hotel became jammed with outgoing official calls and incoming inquiries for information concerning the report.

National, state and party officials came hurrying to the hotel in numbers and gathered for conferences in eighth floor rooms or corridors near the presidential suite to discuss what should be or must be done. One or two secret service men who had been out for a few hours' relaxation, hurried back to aid in handling a situation made more difficult by its suddenness.

Everyone who came from the presidential suite was besieged by questioners, officials, newspaper and merely curious. None could add much to the information already given out officially. Largely this was because the end came with such shocking suddenness that comparatively few of its details had been noted.

It was at a dinner given tonight at the home of Rep. Julius Kahn in honor of the distinguished visitors, that the news of the President's death was received. It was not at first credited by the party, which included Gen. John J. Pershing, but verification was obtained by telephone.

Col. C. E. Stanton, author of the Greeting "Lafayette, we are here" was discussing the President's good fortune in recovering from his illness so quickly when the fatal news came. The dinner was attended by 20 members of the Harding party.

RADIO STATION GIVES NEWS TO THE WORLD.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—At 1:30 a. m., a radio station at Newark, N. J., threw on long distance transmitters and began broadcasting the story of the president's death to stations in Europe, ships at sea, American naval bases and isolated forest patrols over the country.

EXTEND OUTPOST FAR IN PACIFIC

By Bert Kuhn.
(Copyright 1923 By Chicago Tribune)
HONOLULU, August 2.—The western outpost of American democracy has been extended to include virtually all the Central Pacific, under orders from the War Department received here today which bring within the limits of the Hawaiian department of the army almost 11,000,000 square miles of Pacific ocean and islands, mostly ocean. This makes the Hawaiian department the largest United States Military division, nine times larger than the ninth corps area, with headquarters at San Francisco, which heretofore topped the list.

The order of the War Department extends the boundaries of the Hawaiian department to include all American islands between 150 degrees west longitude and 160 degrees east longitude, and between 15 degrees south latitude and 30 degrees north latitude. Among the islands added to the department are Wake, Howland, Baker, Swain, Jarvis, Fanning, Christmas, and Midway Islands.

The expansion of the Hawaiian department will facilitate the rapid and effective movements of troops to strategic points in cases of emergency and make authorization from Washington unnecessary for such movements.

Parliament Takes Vacation Despite Dangerous Cloud

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 2.—Baldwin has Parliament separated for a long vacation under such an ominous cloud of difficult relations with an allied power as it did today after grave statements by the Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, in the House of Commons and the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Marquis Curzon, in the House of Lords, revealing an apparently unresolvable divergence of views between England and France as to how to deal with the reparations question.

Although the Ministerial statements revealed more than had been expected of the details of the negotiations with France and Belgium, showing for instance that England in her draft note to Germany plainly asked the German government to withdraw her decrees abetting passive resistance in the Ruhr, yet the statements still leave the country in ignorance of the British government's next step and the British government's speech, the Ministers themselves are not yet definitely decided on this point.

The government clearly hopes that it may still be possible to bring pressure to bear on the French government through an appeal, by laying its case before a new tribunal, namely, The civilized world.

It is indicated from Paris tonight that M. Poincare has no objection to the publication of the French side, so within a short time opinion will be put in possession of the details of the recent negotiations.

In the comments in political quarters tonight on the Ministerial statements the worst features of the position as revealed today was considered to be that France in her reply did not deign to refer to the draft note to Germany, and that it was simply that under no circumstances could the French government be induced to consent to a joint reply to Germany, as desired by the British government.

That this comment seems to be confirmed by a semi-official statement from Paris to the effect that the French note insisted that the question of passive resistance eclipsed all other questions and must be "before anything else was touched."

All advices from Germany recently have indicated that the German government is unlikely to withdraw its resistance decrees and even if it did, the French would not take to overthrow the present Cuno government.

The British cabinet, evidently not reached a point where it is ready to pursue a separate policy away from the League of Nations, and would continue just the same. Dr. St. Hamer, the German ambassador in his latest conference with Lord Curzon is reported to have laid stress on the critical conditions in Germany and how little it would take to overthrow the present Cuno government.

The cabinet met today after the Parliamentary recess but it is said that no decision was reached to dispatch a separate reply to Germany.

Lord Curzon is remaining for the present in London and the other ministers, although on vacation, will remain for the most part within hail, in the event of some new development in the situation. The foreign secretary received Count De Saint Aulaire, French ambassador, this afternoon so that the perplexities are continuing.

Lord Curzon made it clear today that the government does not intend to withdraw its representatives or separate itself from the reparations commission. He pointed out in his reply to Lord Birkenhead's suggestion of the latter course that it would be necessary to give twelve months notice for withdrawal of the British representative on the reparations commission and he believed that this was a question that could not be set aside.

PREMIER BALDWIN'S ALLUSION TO POSSIBLE ULTIMOR MOTIVES IN THE OCCUPATION OF THE RUHR IS CONSIDERED A VERY SIGNIFICANT WARNING TO FRANCE.

Rather curiously there was hardly any reference in the debate to the inter-allied debts Lord Curzon, however, reminded the House that this was a question that could not be set aside.

BIGGEST SECRET OF CONFERENCE MADE KNOWN

(By Chicago Tribune Service)
LAUSANNE, Aug. 2.—One of the biggest secrets of the Lausanne conference was revealed by M. Venizelos upon his departure.

At a time when the Turks were particularly stubborn two months ago and M. Venizelos had wired Athens to get the Greek army ready to cross the Maritima into Eastern Thrace, M. Poincare telegraphed M. Helle, the French peace delegate, to notify the Greek delegation that France would immediately coercive measures if the Greek government gave marching orders to its troops.

This happened when the Quai d'Orsay still believed that the best way to protect French interests in the Near East was to conciliate the Turks as much as possible.

As the Greek threat really frightened the Turks and they were giving way M. Helle did not deliver M. Poincare's ultimatum to M. Venizelos until the next day. By then the Turks had given way entirely and the ultimatum which might have embroiled Europe in another general conflict caused no trouble.

HAMPTON, Aug. 2.—Albert Garrett, a red, "dressed to kill" was taken back last night when he was locked up in the cell at the Hampton Jail and found that the official had not supplied coat hangers for the prisoners.

"I want a hanger for my coat," said Garrett after he had been put in the cell.

"I told you that some one would get you a hanger," said a guard, a member of their party.

The guard said that was preparing to get a hanger for him, but Garrett said that he was not going to wait for a hanger.

Better Prices On S. C. Opening Day

WILSON, N. C., Aug. 2.—The auction tobacco market opened in South Carolina yesterday and reports received from the principle markets in that state are to the effect that prices are much better than last year and the independent warehouses are buying practically all of the tobacco on the market. The tobacco promises to be of fine quality this year. Naturally the first primings are being offered during the first days of the market opening, the later tobacco promises to be of fine color. Reports are that the farmers are much pleased with the prices they are receiving.

Auction market opened here yesterday with prices on common tobacco about twenty five per cent higher than last year's good tobacco a shade higher. Around 100,000 pounds on the market of which eight per cent are primings. Farmers well pleased with opening all the companies are buying.

Half Million Pounds at Lake City

message from Lake City is as follows: This market sold a half million pounds on the open market here today, and the tobacco was of good quality and the farmers were well pleased. The average was $26.00 per hundred pounds.

The prices ranged for first primings at from $18.00 to $40.00 and for cutters at $35.00 to $50.00.

There seemed to be a good demand for tobacco and buyers snapped up the offerings eagerly.

The Co-operative Association has received 12,000 pounds on this market since the opening at Darlington.

A heavy rain falling at Darlington today kept much tobacco off of the market there. However more than 40,000 pounds were received by the two auction warehouses there.

The prices for the first primings which comprised most of the tobacco offered were around $18.00 per hundred pounds, this being about $5.00 per hundred above the prices last year.

The farmers are much pleased with the prices they are receiving. The Co-ops have received very little tobacco.

Big sales of tobacco on independent floor, prices good farmers jubilant.

KEEP CLEAR OF FOREIGN ISSUES

(By Chicago Tribune Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Democratic party must turn its attention to domestic questions and keep clear of issues involving foreign entanglements. Senator Walsh (Democrat, Mass.), chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, declared today upon his return to Washington after a six week trip in Europe.

The Senator's statement was in complete accord with that issued by Senator Robinson (Democrat, Arkansas), Democratic leader in the Senate, yesterday, and sharply contrasted with the sentiment of the Wilsonian wing of the party.

"If the Democratic party," said Senator Walsh, "falls to prevent ringing issues, clear and well defined and progressive, on domestic questions, it will in my opinion, miss the greatest opportunity to sweep the country a party out of power."

The people are more interested and more concerned about their government's attitude on the things that affect their happiness and prosperity and economic conditions than they are before and are likely to substitute an issue appearing to be more intent on doing something for the people of Europe than for their own people will have unfortunate results."

Correct Fastenings for Smart Linings

One of the most necessary and important features of the linings which we discussed yesterday, is a convenient, yet totally inconspicuous opening. With slips and some loose linings this problem is solved by making the neck line sufficiently large to put on over the head, with or without fastenings at the shoulder. When the lining of a gown with a vest of sheer material opens in front the lining must be cut away enough to prevent the fastening showing. For a soft silk gown it is better to have the lining open at both shoulders, or at the left shoulder and underarm to avoid marring the smooth surface of the silk.

The opening of semi-fitting linings may be finished with half-inch hems and small snaps sewn closely enough together to prevent undesirable spreading of the lining. For a lining which opens in front hooks and eyes are better. To make this closing flat and inconspicuous turn both sides of the opening toward wrong side of the lining along the seam line indicated on pattern; stitch on edges of folds and again one-quarter inch from first stitching. On the right hand side of the lining sew the hooks slightly in from folded edge, and about one inch apart. On the left hand side sew the eyes extending them slightly beyond the folded edge. Cover hooks and eyes with silk seam binding, slipped under the bill of the hook and hemmed at both sides to the lining.

No. 6860 illustrates a frock hung over a correctly cut lining fastened under the arm. There remain to be considered, the proper, smooth seams for a lining. Read about them tomorrow.

HEAVY SELLING OF RAIL SHARES

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Heavy selling of the railroad shares unsettled today's stock market after an early interval of strength. Trading, however, was relatively dull, with the large bulk of the day's business coming from professional sources.

French and Belgian francs dropped to new low records for the year in response to Premier Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons setting forth that there was no hope of an agreement between Great Britain and France on German reparations.

The French franc sank to 5.11 cent, or within a point of the low of all time, and the Belgian franc was down to 4.87 3/4, but both rallied later.

There was nothing new in the day's news to act for the selling of the railroad shares. Northwestern rails were again the hardest hit, bear operators laying stress on the failure of several of the large systems to earn their fixed charges in recent months. Rail officials recently have pointed out that the first six months of the year were always the worst for those roads and that large sums have been expended for equipment this spring and summer to get them in shape for moving the heavy traffic this fall.

Rumors of new financing by the St. Paul system also were circulated during the day but these lacked confirmation.

Great Northern preferred dropped 3 5/8, to 54, the lowest quotation since 1896 and St. Paul preferred, Rock Island common and six and seven per cent preferred Northern Pacific, Northwestern and West Virginia and Union Pacific sold off one to three points.

The average of 20 leading industrial shares showed a slight gain in the day's trading. United States steel, Baldwin American, Canada some of the other so-called "Pivotal" stocks registered fractional recessions after having sold one to four points above yesterday's closing prices.

There was heavy buying for the short account in the early part of the session as a result of the universally favorable earnings reports recently published by United States steel, American Locomotive, General Motors Foundation Company, Beth. Steel, Baker and other large industrial concerns.

The selling of rails in the face of the report of record breaking car loadings for the week ending July 21 was somewhat of a surprise. Speculative fear of radical railroad legislation in the next Congress was regarded as a factor in this liquidation.

Call money opened at 5 per cent, dropped to 4-1/2, thence to 4-1/4 and finally to 4 where it closed. The time money market was quiet with

Delegates Named By Legion Post To State Meeting

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Danville Post, American Legion, last night at Belmont Park, delegates were elected to the State convention to be held in Fredericksburg in September. Fifteen delegates were named, each delegate being given the privilege of naming an alternate. The delegates follow:

Waverly Cousins, Arch Morgan, T. A. Fox, Albert Patton, C. B. Conway, E. H. Miller, Col. S. W. Minor, H. A. Wiseman, Dick Moss, G. W. Johnson, W. O. Hankins, C. N. Rucker, Milton Norman, Landon Robertson and W. Flynn Ragland.

The meeting was called to order by Post Commander Waverly Cousins who introduced Dr. Samuel Newman, the speaker of the evening. He gave an interesting account of conditions in Europe and of American Relief work on the Continent.

The entertainment feature of the program was furnished by three boxing matches, participated in by members of the Danville Post and "love pushers." These lads have learned the many art of self defense and they know how to give and take blows.

The results of these matches follow:

In the heavyweight class Hinton Gwynn and his brother, J. D. Gwynn, opposed each other, the former winning after three rounds of fast and furious battling.

In the featherweight class the Danville Post's Willie Atkins and Hinton Gwynn, these two boys battled three rounds to a draw.

In the heavy weight class A. T. Holland, Jr., and Ben Franklin were opposed. Holland received the decision.

The status of the State War Memorial was explained by Dr. Newman.

Dr. Newman said that a committee of the Legion would recommend at the State convention a memorial to the American Legion in Richmond. He added that there was a great deal of opposition to this form of memorial and that he thought sentiment was controlling the library memorial of the American Legion.

Dr. Newman said that the Danville Post had placed a branch library in each of the ten congressional districts. He then offered a resolution that the Danville Post endorse this type of memorial.

The resolution was adopted. The local Post proposed that the local Post do something for the youth of the city, and a suggestion was made that action take the form of establishment of community shower baths to be situated at the city hall.

WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING

29th president of the United States, was in every respect a self-made man.

Like Abraham Lincoln and many of his other distinguished predecessors, he worked his way up from a little log cabin to the White House.

The story of his success reads, indeed, like a Horatio Alger or Oliver Optic novel for boys.

Born of poor parents, he put himself through college, fought an uphill battle to become a successful newspaper editor and publisher, gained leadership in politics of his home community and state, and finally attained his boyhood ambition.

For Harding, as a lad of 12, had promised his chums he some day would be the nation's chief executive.

Born in Ohio.

Harding was born on his grandfather's farm near Blooming Grove, Morrow county, O., Nov. 2, 1865.

His father, Dr. George Tyrone Harding, still living, was a country physician whose practice was so small that he was forced to work in the fields to make ends meet.

Mrs. Phoebe Elizabeth Dickerson Harding, his mother, was a home-loving, industrious woman of deep religious convictions. She professed the Adventist creed. From her Warren inherited many of the traits so characteristic of him in later life.

Both father and mother came of a long line of sturdy pioneers. Dr. Harding was of Scotch descent while his wife was of Dutch stock. He was the eldest of eight children.

When he was 5, the family moved to the neighboring village of Caledonia, O.

At 4, he had learned to read, and was memorizing long poems. He also was anxious to "speak his piece" at neighborhood gatherings.

But he wasn't the "goody, goody" type. He could swim further and dive deeper than any of his chums at the "old swimming" hole in Warren creek. And it seems he could chew tobacco better than any of them.

Worked Through School.

When he was 14, a lanky, gangling youth more than six feet tall, he made his debut as an academic course at Ohio Central College in Iberia. That long since has closed its doors.

Several times when he couldn't find enough odd jobs, he was forced to quit school. But always, after something turned up, he would return to his books. He was graduated with a B. S. degree when he was 17.

For a year he taught school. Then he read law for another year. His father bought him the Marion (O.) Star.

Turkish victory is entirely due to the fraction between France and England.

Czecho-Slovakia seems too do well. Jugo-Slavia, on the other hand, is suffering a great deal from internal strains and stresses. Have you ever heard of a people, called Croats? Well, this people is very much alive now. Croatia is a part of the new kingdom of the Serbs, Slovians, and Croats.

The Croats have now found out that they are the cream of creation and it is not becoming for them to be in the general pot of Jugo-Slavia. They want their own independence, and they don't mind insisting on it.

Now a word about Austria. Every American who has visited this suffering country has nothing but praise for the Austrian people. I have lived 10 months in Vienna and had ample opportunity to learn and admire the Austrian people. Once the rulers over a great empire of 65,000,000, the Austrians are reconciled to their lot of being a small country of 7 millions. The Austrians, of all other peoples in Europe, are quiet and resigned to their lot, patiently trying to make the best of the situation and to save their capital—ON Beautiful Vienna—as a center of European art, music and science.

during their darkest hours of existence they tried hard to maintain their world-famous medical institutions and in spite of the wolf of hunger Vienna's scientists kept up the fires of learning and research. The Viennese are very jealous to retain their city as the medical center of the world and I think they will succeed. In no clinic in Europe is the American physician so welcome as in Vienna. Here the American physician has free access to the wonderful clinics where the world celebrities are willing to receive him into their fold. Americans have only warm feelings towards Austria on which soil they dwell a patient, docile, and truly cultured people.

Though I am a physician, I shall venture to make a diagnosis of Europe's Politicalills. The trouble with Europe is her too many nationalities. The hand of one nation is always against the other. Racial hatreds are deeply inbred prejudice and misunderstanding is the weed that grows most luxuriously on the political soil of Europe. Enlightened and humanitarian efforts seem powerless in the face of the dark forces which national and racial hates are able to marshal. Just think where would this mighty nation be if the germs of intolerance, bigotry, racial prejudice and misunderstanding would be gnawing at our vitals? Europe will never be quiet if the more cultured and larger nations do not assimilate the smaller and less cultured nations. However, this assimilation, or fusion of nationalities cannot be accomplished by force. When ever is force is applied with the aim of assimilating another people quite the opposite is accomplished. Austria tried force in her efforts to assimilate the Slavic people, and failed. Germany met with failure when she tried to assimilate her Poles in Posen. Poland is now repeating this mistake and is trying to assimilate other nationalities within her realm by force and she too, must fail.

DE PALMA IN WRECK

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

HUME, Ill., Aug. 2.—Ralph De Palma noted racer narrowly escaped death here shortly after midnight when his Packard touring car carrying a Michigan license number, collided head on at a bridge with a Ford touring car, wrecking both machines.

De Palma's machine turned a somersault into a ditch and was wrecked. De Palma crawled from under the wreckage and was able to walk to town. The machine was taken to a local garage. None of the occupants of the Ford car was injured. De Palma denied his identity. He said that he was J. H. Wade of Los Angeles consulting engineer for the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit. He admitted that it was De Palma's Packard and that he had purchased the car. He carried a large bank roll, and the pocketbook and his hat bore the name of Ralph De Palma.

We are getting ready for airplane traffic. Many of our roads seem to be built for it.

WARREN G. HARDING

THE HARDING HOME AT MARION, O.

States Senate.

Six years later saw him put forth as a compromise candidate for the Republican presidential nomination at the convention in Chicago. He won the nomination and rode into the White House in the Republican tidal wave that swept the country six months later. James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, was his Democratic opponent.

Has Big Task.

A mighty task confronted Warren G. Harding when he entered the White House.

America had entered upon the period of reconstruction following the greatest war in all history. It still technically was at war with Germany and Austria, although hostilities had ceased more than two years before, for no treaty had been signed between it and these nations.

There were problems of unemployment and national finance that must be attended to immediately.

Harding, with the same indomitable spirit that carried him through the storms of early life, put his shoulder to the wheel of state. Against the advice of his personal physician, Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, he was at his desk for months from early in the morning until midnight. There were times even when he was still fumbling through his papers until almost daybreak.

The world conference on disarmament probably will go down in history as the greatest achievement of his administration.

But Harding's fight for an American ship subsidy, for the establishment of a world court of justice, for the preservation of the 18th or prohibition amendment, for the amicable settlement of industrial differences on the railroads and in the mines will be remembered long after his name has become only a memory.

WHITE SLAVERY
TRAFFIC HALTED

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

BRUSSELS, Aug. 2.—An American traveling under the name of John Richardson and a Frenchman named Jean Rouffranche were arrested yesterday on charges of manipulating a giant white slave machine to get French and Belgian girls into America.

Two young Parisiennes, Raymonde Corlier, 18, and Blanche La Fioche, 20, found with them, were equipped with false passports. Both girls said they were going to America to enter the movies on promises of Richardson and Rouffranche. They had letters to accomplices in New York who were supposed to take them to Hollywood.

It is alleged that Richardson and Rouffranche were busy in Europe, selling the girls in New York where they are met by associates. The police declare they have evidence showing a large number of cases during the past six months in which girls were destined for the vice markets of New York or Montreal.

In every case the girls were promised either movie jobs or mannequin employment with New York modistes. The white slave traffic was caught by the treachery of one of their accomplices in Brussels, who informed the police after a quarrel over a girl.

SEES SAFETY IN PARACHUTES.

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Gathering his figures from all over the world, E. R. Calhoun declares there were 90 crashes of airplanes during the six months ended June 30th. One hundred and six persons were killed in these accidents, and 44 were injured.

Mr. Calhoun says it is only by the introduction of parachutes, and the capable use of them, that fatalities can be materially reduced.

RACE DECISION BRINGS UP ISSUE

By AL COPLAND

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Whom is a dead heat not a dead heat? And does the Jockey Club recognize betting?

These questions have been raised by the decision in the Missionary-Deadlock race here Tuesday. At that time the stewards ruled that this pair split winning honors although they awarded Missionary the big end of the purse when Deadlock's trainer refused to let his horse run off the dead heat. In days of yore, hereabouts, when betting was not, as it is not, under the ban, wagers followed the placing of the judges. In these hectic times the Jockey Club declares it does not recognize betting, but it develops from a ruling made on a demurrer from a previous contention that it certainly does recognize betting.

A split of all first place wagers on both horses was not the decision of any one connected with the adjudication of the competitive side of the sport. It was the idea of John Cavanaugh, betting ring factotum of times gone by who had, by common consent, been deciding all such vexations in what was presumed to be official way.

But Edward F. Simms, owner of Missionary, being financially interested to the tune of probably twenty grand, carried his case to the stewards who found for him to the end of placing Missionary as the winner of the race. Then he went to Richard T. Wilson, president of the Saratoga Racetrack Association and showed him how a split of first moneys was manifestly unfair in that it gave Missionary backers twenty per cent, or more less on their investment despite the fact Missionary was the winner according to the stewards, and benefited those who supported Deadlock and got a split of their first money wagers when they were entitled only to a place settlement or third money.

This argument appealed to Wilson and he directed Cavanaugh to reverse his decision. This was tantamount to having Cavanaugh tell all the orrallers and memory brokers to pay first money to Missionary speculators and place and who to those who had invested on Deadlock's chances. And most wagers had been settled on the split basis.

This action by the president of the local association, affiliated with the Jockey Club, and the decision provoked more clamor in turf circles than any ruling of the stewards in years. And the end is not yet.

WAGE INCREASE TO EXPRESS CO.
MEN IS GRANTED

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Increase ranging from three and a half cents an hour were granted employees of the American Express Company and the Southeastern Express Company in a decision of the United States Railroad Labor Board made public here tonight.

The employees had requested an increase averaging 10 cents an hour. The Southeastern Express Company men, in addition, had asked equalization of their wages and the wages of the American Express employees.

A. O. Wharton, labor member, voted for the increase "after failing to get something more preferable." Adjudication of the rules was denied because it would have delayed action on wages the decision said.

Chairman Ben. Hooper, public member, answering the charge of a "sympathetic attitude towards the railroads made by Wharton, called attention to the fact that in two years' voting where the decision has been by a five to four vote, Wharton voted 109 out of 111 times for the employ-as with Hooper's votes were divided 57 for the railroads and 54 for the men.

Answering Wharton's declaration that the board had failed to adopt any generally recognized or approved method of arriving at a basic minimum wage for railroad employes, Hooper declared the board and declined to adopt the budgetary method heretofore advanced by certain labor organizations, the adoption of which have bankrupted all the railroads and thrown them into the hands of the Federal Government."

Trinity Baptist Church Marion

The church which Mr. and Mrs. Harding attended at Marion and from which the funeral service of President Harding probably will be conducted.

Harding once went in for a stage career but it was prematurely wrecked. Two actors came to Marion from Cincinnati and organized a stock company. Harding was a member. The show went to Murraysville, 25 miles away, and there went broke. Harding got back to Marion penniless.

Ohio hands formerly met every year at Findlay, O., and competed for prizes. Harding spent $100 for uniforms for the Marion band, hoping he would win enough prizes to make it up. He won $200. It was said that made Harding prouder than his election as president.

Harding was an admirer of Shakespeare. While a Marion Star reporter, also a Shakespeare lover, he went to Cleveland to see a Shakespeare production.

They had $6 between them. A friendly conductor let them ride to Gallion, O., free. There another conductor boarded the train and charged them $2.40 fare.

Gallery seats at Cleveland cost $2. Hotel bill was $1.50. In the morning they had ten cents left. A Marion conductor saved them the trouble of walking home.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IN FORMAL STATEMENT

(By the Associated Press)
PLYMOUTH, Vermont, Aug. 3.—Vice President Coolidge issued the following statement early today:
"Reports have reached me which I fear are correct that President Harding is gone. The world has lost a great and good man. I mourn his loss. He was my chief and my friend."
"It will be my purpose to carry out the policies which he has been striving for the service of the American people and for moving their responsibilities wherever they may arise. For this purpose I shall seek the co-operation of all those who have been associated with the president during his term of office. Those who have given their efforts to assist him I wish to remain in office that they may assist me. I have faith that God will direct the destinies of our nation."
President Coolidge sent the following telegram to Mrs. Harding:
"We offer your our deepest sympathy. May God bless you and keep you."
(Signed)
"Calvin Coolidge."

WHERE TO MARKET

A Weekly Buyers Guide of Interest to the Thrifty Housewife

Photograph Your Household Expenses Is The Latest

By MARIAN HALE.
NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Have you difficulty balancing your household accounts?

Are you able to keep any sort of an understanding between your check book and your bank balance? Or do you just hoist the white flag whenever you meet a job of figuring face to face?

Don't reproach yourself if you have to answer yes to all these questions, for the majority of women do, it appears.

Yet, according to Elsa Louise Cobb you can make figures eat out of your hand if you just coax them along, and dramatize them a bit.

Miss Cobb is statistician for the Foreign Language Information Service, and she keeps the business details and production data condensed in 14 languages straight by a picture method of her own invention.

"You can make fascinating drawings, or tell good human interest stories with figures if you manage to learn them," she says. "Household accounts get some meaning when you use the visual method on them."

"Keep monthly and yearly pictures of your expenditures. On a diagram sheet keep the record faithfully. Use a different colored crayon or ink to represent each month. When your expenses go up, carry your lines up, and when they fall below your appropriation note that. When you have the record before you you'll find out there's many a little mystery story revealed that needs to be solved."

Immigrant Information.
The walls of Miss Cobb's office are lined with charts and diagrams which tell you at a glance just how many immigrants landed in each State in a certain month, how many calls for aid were received, how many were attended to, and practically anything you might want to know.

"Of course, I keep everything in figures, too," she explains, "but figures mean so little to the average person."

"The housewife is apt to excuse her lack of system in accounts on the score that she is after all conducting such a small business enterprise. But business principles, like, charity, begin at home. And until a woman has mastered the problem of living within her income, she is still uneducated."

"If she says it with pictures instead of figures, she will know what she is doing, and before long systematizing her expenditures and keeping expenses down, will become a game instead of a drudgery."

Besides being an artist at statistics, Miss Cobb is a talented musician, and her voice is almost as much in demand as her diagrams.

When you have cooked more roasting ears than the family could eat, remove the grains from the left-over cobs and spread out in a thin layer to dry in a warm oven when thoroughly dry store in a cool dry place and use for soups, fritters or for any purpose you would use fresh or canned corn.

STORED VEGETABLES.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY.
HOME-MADE PICKLES.

The thrifty housekeeper will make her own pickles. In winter and spring good home-made pickles stimulate mummy a jaded appetite and help take the place of a formal appetizer. Cucumber are expensive to buy when put up but not out of reach for most pocketbooks during the pickling season. They are delicious to serve with sandwiches for a Sunday night lunch. The midguts can be used with afternoon tea sandwiches.

Cucumbers.
One hundred small cucumbers, 2 quarts boiling water, 2 cups salt, 1 gallon vinegar, 4 sticks cinnamon, 6 tablespoons sugar, 2 teaspoons mustard seed, 4 tablespoons whole cloves, 1 tablespoon celery seed, lump of alum size of a nutmeg.

Wash cucumbers and wipe with a dry cloth. Put in a large deep crock and pour over brine. The brine is made by dissolving the salt in the boiling water. Cover crock with a cheesecloth and let stand three days. Drain brine from cucumbers and drain brine to the boiling point. Pour over cucumbers and let stand three days.

Drain brine from cucumbers and let stand in alum water and let stand in clear water for three hours. Drain off water.

Put cucumbers, vinegar and spices in preserving kettle. Bring to the boiling point and simmer closely covered for ten minutes. Pack pickles in sterilized jars. Fill with boiling vinegar and seal.

Cucumber Rings.
Good-sized cucumbers are used for these pickles, but the seeds must be tender.

One onion, stick cinnamon, 1 ounce whole cloves, 1 ounce whole allspice, 2 pounds brown sugar, 3 pints vinegar.

Soak cucumbers in a strong brine for three days. Drain off brine and soak in clear water for three days. Drain and simmer in weak vinegar for two hours. A small lump of alum should be added to the vinegar.

Cut cucumbers in inch rings. Pack in a crock and pour over the vinegar, sugar and spices which have been boiling. Drain off vinegar and heat to the boiling point and pour over cucumbers. When cool after the third morning cover with a big plate and store in a dark cool place. These pickles are a delicious sweet pickle.

Cold Sliced.
One hundred three or four-inch cucumbers, half their bulk in onions the size of English walnuts, 2 cups olive oil, 1-2 cup white mustard seed, 1-3 cup celery seed. Peel onions, wash cucumbers and put in brine strong enough to keep up an egg. Let stand over night. In the morning drain and slice both cucumbers and onions. Put layer of each in a large crock. Sprinkle with celery seed, mustard seed and olive oil. Continue until all is used. Cover with st. stalks of horseradish roots. Pour over cold vinegar to cover. Weight with a plate and keep on a cold cellar bottom.

Babson Says Farm Outlook Now Critical

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Aug. 3.—Roger W. Babson issued the following statement today regarding the crop situation. Mr. Babson is not as bearish regarding the immediate condition of the farmer as are many of his contemporaries, but he does feel that the farming situation will reach a crisis this fall.

"Twenty years ago the great news item affecting industries, commerce and business in general was the monthly report of the crop situation. For days before these crop reports were issued, bankers and manufacturers, and merchants would speculate on their probable figure. For days after these crop reports were issued, newspapers would have editorials and comments thereon. I will remember when the telegraph lines and the ticker service would be held up pending the issue of the monthly crop report in Washington. Such an interest, however, no longer exists. Crop reports are now issued without much comment. There is little or no suspense and speculation. Whether we have become hardened to the situation or whether more important things have come into our lives only the future can tell.

"Crops, however, are still a very important factor for they are the basis of American prosperity. Unless the farmer is prosperous, the nation cannot be prosperous. Nearly a third of our population is dependent upon the crops for its income, especially on such crops as wheat and corn. If these farmers cannot make money, they can not buy goods. The farmers supply the greatest buying power of the country. When the farmer loses money, the buying power of the country is seriously curtailed. This is one of the great reasons for the bearish attitude taken today by financiers. The farming centers are depressed. It is possible, of course, that conditions during the next few months may entirely change the situation for the better. The only point I desire to make is that the farmer has reached a very critical period and the next few months will determine whether a year of effort will give him a profit or a loss. A bushel of grain must bring in exchange—that is in other goods—as much as it brought in previous times before the country can have real prosperity.

"At the close of the war America was raising the grain for itself and a large part of Europe. Since the war Europe has seeded down large areas and has correspondingly increased production of grain other countries, such as Canada, the Argentine, and Australia, owing to cheaper labor costs, are competing keenly with American grain. Hence, the underbidding American grain in Liverpool, the wheat market of the world. As a result, the American farmer is facing a bumper crop and at the same time carrying over about one hundred million bushels from last year's crop. As it is very difficult to increase the consumption of wheat thru any advertising or other propaganda, this puts our American farmers in a very critical situation. Hence, during the next few months the crop reports, not only of this country but the other great countries, should be studied very carefully. The American farmer should not give up hope. As stated, something may happen in this or some other country, which may entirely change the situation one way or the other. One thing, however, we all should keep in mind, namely, that unless the farmer is prosperous the rest of us cannot be prosperous. Hence, it is up to all of us to help the farming situation in every practical way.

"This agricultural situation is largely responsible for the drop in the Babson chart from its high point of 11 per cent. above normal in March to 4 per cent. below normal where it stands at the present time.

The truth is that the farmers are greatly curtailing their buying and this is being reflected throughout all industries. When the farmer stops buying from the retailer, the retailer stops buying from the jobber, the jobber stops buying from the manufacturer and the manufacturer shuts down his plant. It is easy to tell them that they must suffer with the rest, but the fact is that the farmers are suffering more than the rest. Moreover, the action of the stock markets and commodity markets today is largely due to this suffering of the farmers.

Schoolfield Senate Will Meet at 8 Tonight to Choose Presiding Officer—Joint Session Next Thursday.

The Schoolfield "House of Representatives" held a meeting yesterday afternoon at Schoolfield for the purpose of organizing the House to which new members were elected during the recent election which followed the week's holiday at the textile plant. Interest centered in the nomination and election of a speaker of the House. J. A. Marshall of the River-side district was nominated and elected unanimously to the position and he will succeed W. C. Goforth, of the Dan River division, a loom fixer who for the past year has acceptably filled the important legislative position. Mrs. Perry Bragg was not nominated. Neither were others who aspired and there was a withdrawal of candidates in favor of Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall operates the Riverside division filtration plant close to the northern end of the concrete bridge. R. W. Seay of the Dan River division, a weaver, was elected vice-speaker. Mr. Marshall is the fourth "speaker" under the Industrial Democracy government policy. Clinton J. Parrott held the post for two years then came Walter Jackson and Mr. Goforth, the latter two holding the position for one year each.

Tonight at eight o'clock the Senate is to meet to elect a presiding officer. C. C. Boler has been president for the past year, he succeeding L. J. Rushworth, the first president of the Senate.

Next Thursday will see a joint session of both branches of plant government at which time H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the mill, will deliver an address citing statistics on the accomplishments of the past legislative year and offering suggestions for the new one.

"CHICK" EVANS LIKES TITLES

Golfing champions seldom repeat. Chick Evans is a decided exception to the rule.

When Evans recently won the western amateur title it was the eighth time that Chick had finished out in front in that event.

His 1922 victory in the western was the fourth consecutive time that he won that much-sought-after amateur classic.

But titles mean little or nothing in the golfing career of Chick Evans. He probably has won more medals and cups than any other golfer in the history of the game.

Chick Evans first popped into the limelight back in 1909 when he won his first western amateur title. Since that time it has been a succession of medals and cups and titles for the brilliant golfer.

The following year Evans proved that his first win was no fluke, by capturing the western open. That victory stamped him as a coming star.

Two years later he won the final in the national amateur, being defeated by that sterling golfer, Jerome Travers.

Becomes National Figure
It was not until 1914 that he became a national figure in the golfing world, when in the national open he was defeated by the great Walter Hagen by the margin of only one stroke.

In 1916 Evans experienced his biggest year, when he won not only the national amateur but the national open as well. These two events are the high spots of golf in the United States. Evans stands out as the only amateur to ever have won the two events in the same year.

Bobby Jones with the national open to his credit this year, hopes to tie the record made by Evans by taking the national amateur and open. Jones, a remarkable golfer, may turn the trick, but it will prove no easy task.

Averages Last Year's Defeat
The year 1920 was also a big one for Evans. Not only did he win the western amateur but the national amateur as well. These two events are just about the cream of the amateur competition.

Last year Evans went to the finals in the national amateur, being defeated by Jess Sweetser, who played remarkable golf throughout that event. Recently he eliminated Sweetser in the semi-finals of the western amateur.

Evans has an even dozen victories in golfing events to his credit, with perhaps twice that many wins in tournaments of lesser importance.

Evans is unquestionably one of the greatest golfers the game has ever produced. He is a golfer who has a bunch of records for golfers to shoot at that will prove harder to beat than Babe Ruth's home-run spree in 1921, which reached the amazing total of 59.

SEVEN JUNK NUMBER FOR REDS
CINCINNATI, Aug. 2.—Seven seems to be a junk number for Adolfo Luque, star pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds. He has lost seven of his first 19 starts, he also, when the club was hard pressed for pitchers, worked a doubleheader and won both games.

In his 16 victories Luque has twice staged winning streaks of seven games. Both attempts to make it eight in a row resulted in defeat. On one occasion Chicago failures, on another occasion Cincinnati, broke him out while in the other start, Brooklyn abruptly ended his winning streak.

Cincinnati's chances to win the National League pennant largely depend on the ability of Luque to continue his great work. Luque is 32, far from a youngster, and some of the experts doubt his ability to go the route at such a fast clip.

FASCISTI ORGANIZE IN ROMANIA
(By The Associated Press)
BUCHAREST, Aug. 2.—Fascist party after the model of the Italian Fascist, has been organized in Rumania. Its motto is "Justice to the just, death to the evil Fascism never forgives."

In its program the new party declares that Rumania needs, first of all, a dictatorship for the restoration of order, security, and honest dealing. It calls also for the expulsion of foreigners who are present to the detriment of 2,000,000 persons gravely suffering the housing problem.

CAVE GIRL WILL GET NEW HOME

(By Chicago Tribune Service.)

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 2.—For Emma Adams there was an appeal today in that verse of "Home, Sweet Home" which goes:

"Mid pleasures and palaces, tho' we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."
But Emma will not go back to her primitive life on an island in the Kaw river, where welfare workers found her in tattered overalls and bare feet last Friday. Emma must have a real home, with books and pretty dresses, and forget the roughest about life of almost fifteen years along the river.

Judge J. D. Hamilton, of the Shawnee County Juvenile Court, so ruled today after a hearing of one of the most unusual cases in the history of juvenile cases in Kansas. In so ruling, the judge ignored the pleas of Emma and her father and brother, for Emma was ready to turn her back on "civilization" and return to her ducks and chickens and the island cave she knew as home.

The court took Emma from the custody of her father, Andrew Adams, wood chopper and fisherman and placed her in the custody of Miss Eva Corning, probation officer, as a ward of the court. Both surprise and sympathy were apparent in the court room when the girl made her plea to return to her island home with her father, her chickens and ducks.

she said, trying hard to keep back the tears as she nervously fingered the creases in her new gingham frock. The dress and shoes and stockings had supplanted the tattered overalls and shirt in which she was clad when found by the officers four days ago.

"I don't mind wearing hose clothes and going bare footed," she continued, haltingly. "I was able to help daddy, too in keeping house." Through all her testimony, Emma insisted she "liked her dad." Her words were slow and her tone soft, words were courteous, never forgetting to say "sir" when addressed by one of the court attendants.

KING AND POPE REGRET ILLNESS OF HARDING
ROME, July 31.—King Victor Emmanuel today expressed deep regret over the illness of President Harding. The King, who is staying in Piedmont, has requested that all reports concerning the President's condition be communicated to him there.

Pope Pius also has requested Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, to obtain all available news with regard to the progress of the President's illness. The Pontiff today expressed the hope that the President soon would be well again.

FEW YOUNGSTERS MAKING GOOD

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—This has been a tough year for the development of young pitchers, particularly as regards the American League.

The pitching records of the Johnsonian organization fail to reveal the name of a single youngster who has done anything out of the ordinary in the pitching line.

Thurston of Chicago and Zahner of Washington with five wins to their credit, have been perhaps the most successful, yet neither gives evidence of being a star. Thurston was taken by Chicago from St. Louis over the waning route while Zahner was recently bought by the Nationals from the Southern League.

Two left handers, Shaute of Cleveland and Welberg of Philadelphia got away good, but apparently their first few games were merely flashes.

The National League has fared better. Jack Bentley, former Baltimore star, who while not a youngster, is making his big league debut with the Giants and delivering.

Other young pitchers in the National League who show promise are Kauffman of Chicago, Genewich of Boston, Dickerman and Henry of Brooklyn, Stuart of St. Louis and Keen of Chicago.

BENTLEY GOING GOOD FOR GIANTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Jack Bentley, who cost the New York Giants $65,000, and who was hailed in the spring as an exploded phantom, has pitched a fine game today in the outfit of a bad start.

Because of salary differences Bentley was late in reporting to the Giants. He was many pounds overweight when he joined McGraw's club and needed more than the few weeks given him to get into shape.

As a result of poor condition Bentley's first three or four starts in the National League were sad affairs. It really seemed as if McGraw had been barked. Critics were ready to place Bentley in the also ran class.

Just when a majority of the experts were warning on him, Bentley began to show the form that made him the twon hero in Baltimore. His pitching record shows that in the first 14 games worked he turned in nine victories.

Bentley has not confined his activities to pitching, he has been a whaler at the bat, placed as a pinch hitter when and where he is slugging the ball well over the 400 mark. It's beginning to look as if McGraw didn't get stung after all.

CHAMP GOLF TITLES HELD BY YOUNGSTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—At the present moment the two most important golf titles in the United States are held by youngsters, both of whom have just come to their majority and the dethroned open champion is another youngster who has been of voting age less than a year.

Jones and Sweetser, open and amateur champions, are boys who fondle a golf club from the time they were able to use one and to hit a golf ball. All know that Bobby was a boy in dresses, who was not over 16 when he was urged into outdoor life to build a physique that started with physical growth demanded. Jess Sweetser was not a weakling when he was a kid but he was in such close proximity to golf an old golf course that he began to swing a club at a ball at the age when most boys swing a broomstick handle at every obstacle they meet on a walk.

Some think that it is a wonderful fact that young men, stepping into their majority, should win championships from mature players of experience. And why should it be? Take for instance the game of base ball with which some golfers are in deadly antagonism. Isn't it a fact that young men in base ball have been able to bat as hard as old men? For that matter isn't it a fact that a young man has the record for hitting further than any other man?
